NO GOALS' STORY

Imagine watching a football game on a field without end zones. Imagine watching a basketball game without a scoreboard or a golf game on a course without any greens. What would be the point of such nonsense? It would be pointless because there would be no purpose or goal to achieve.

Can you imagine living your life without a purpose or a goal? Peter is the master of living without goals. In fact, his villainous name is NO GOALS. He lives in Sacramento, CA with his older brother, his younger sister and their parents. Peter is a senior in high school and has no idea what he wants to do with his life. There is nothing wrong with this except that he has never had any goals. Sadly, he does not know what he is good at doing because he has never tried anything for fear that he would be bad at it.

Despite his name, NO GOALS actually does have one goal: to make students give up on their goals. He carries a bow and arrow set with him at all times and is often heard saying, "If you aim at nothing, you will hit it every time." In other words, it is better not to try at all than to try and fail. The arrows have suction cups on the ends and when NO GOALS shoots students, the suction from the arrow drains their brains causing them to forget their goals. "Brain Drainer" is a dangerous tool because without brainpower, it is impossible to set goals.

NO GOALS has cleverly partnered with all the major furniture companies in the world and makes a percentage from every recliner sold. His favorite model is called the "ComaBoy" because it is so comfortable that when students sit in it, they relax into a state of unconsciousness. However, NO GOALS has a custom made ComaBoy that comes equipped with high-powered rocket launchers for speedy transportation. Although his ComaBoy is equipped with rockets, those sold in stores are not. Store-sold ComaBoys are used just like recliners but their comfort causes students to point their toes toward the ceiling and forget about their goals.

Setting goals helps students focus. Since NO GOALS was never involved in anything as a child, he consequently never received an award. To compensate for his loss of rewards, he created his own "Certificate for Nothing" which reads, "This certificate certifies that (student's name) has accomplished nothing." Students feel proud to receive this certificate because at least they are getting something, but they only gain the approval of NO GOALS and lose the approval of everyone else. Avoid the arrows, recliners and certificates that NO GOALS has to offer. Although his lifestyle sounds good for a short time, it is not valuable for your future. Remember, smart people are cool!
